Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 13 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny spells and locally heavy showers today.

Today:
Largely dry with bright or sunny spells at first. However, showers will soon develop into the afternoon, these will be slow-moving and locally heavy at times. Feeling warm in the sunshine in between the showers, with light winds. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Tonight:
Any showers will fade during the evening. Largely dry overnight, with some clear spells at first. However, low cloud will drift in from off the North Sea by dawn. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Friday:
Low cloud will gradually lift, thin and break to give bright or sunny spells during the day. Generally fewer showers than preceding days, with most places staying largely dry. Cooler. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rain moving northeast overnight will break up to give widespread showers on Saturday, with some sunny spells. Further heavy and thundery showers breaking out widely on Sunday and Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.